FIRST STATE SUPER WINS BEST NEW PRODUCT

Following last night's announcement of the 2006 SuperRatings Awards, First State Super is delighted to win the Best New Product Award for its Personal Division.

The Personal Division — which anyone, regardless of who they work for, can join — was introduced when First State Super gained public offer status on 1 May this year.

Prior to 1 May 2006, First State Super was only able to accept contributions from members working for public sector employers. Now the Fund is open to all, including the families of current members, via its Personal Division.

“First State Super has gained a number of accolades for its products and services over the years, yet this nomination is a particular honour because it endorses a division that we introduced only six months ago, when we took the major step of becoming a public offer fund,” said Michael Dwyer, Chief Executive of First State Super.

“It is very gratifying to receive this type of recognition for a new product, at a time when the Fund has undergone such a significant change.”

First State Super's Personal Division has already been given the highest Platinum rating by SuperRatings. Super funds gaining Platinum status are categorised as being the best value for money funds, well balanced across all key assessment criteria, in a robust, secure and proven governance/risk framework.

The Award winners were announced on 14 November.
